The Blood has hitherto been considered by Empirioks and others, as the great regulator of the human system, and such is the devotedness of the adherents to that erroneous doctrine, that they content themselves with the simple pessession of this fallacious opinion, without enquiring into the primary sousces from whence pain, sickness, disease and death. Not so with DR. HUNT whose extensive research and practical experience so e inently qualify him for the profession of which he has been one of the most useful members. He contends, and a moment's reflection will convince any reasoning mind of the correctness of his views-that the stomach, liver and the associated organs are the primary and great regulators of health, and that the blood in very many instances is totally disconnected with the first and succeeding sta-ces of disease, and that unless a medicine reach es the root of the dispase, the superficial anaynos usually prescribed, serve but as fails to cov or the ravages of deep-ronted maladies. Un-Sor these convictions, at the expense of years yo close application, the doctor has discovered medicine whose searching powers are irresistible, and in prescribing, it is with a from conviction of its being a radical cure in the verticus diseason already enumerated, even ir applied in the most critical cases, but he does not pretend

That general intelligence, which is and must ever continue to be the great bulwark of our republicen insulutions and which is the result, in a great degree, of our libral system of soucation, and the inquiring spirit of the age is rapidly increasng throughout theis hole country. It is duty which we own to ourselves, as well as to posterity, to adopt all the necessa y means, which piudence may ggest, and wisdom devise, to preserve and perpetuate our free institutions. From the history of the past we may learn something of the future; and it is a fact worthy to be remarked, that no people hitherto have long been able to preserve their freedom, when the mass of the community were unaducated and can be of little use to the state. uninformed.
